When Someone Dies: A Child-Caregiver Activity Book by the National Alliance for Grieving Children is an activity book for children that also provides valuable information to parents and caregivers about how grief impacts children. Contained within the pages of the book are activities for children designed to help them better express, understand, and cope with their grief. Each page also offers guidance about how adults can connect with their child on the very difficult subjects of death, dying, and bereavement.

Book Features:

- Parent tips for understanding and connecting with their children after a death.
- Comprehensive bereavement information including funerals, remembering the person who died, dealing with difficult situations after a death, and coping with feelings.
- Practical information for children about death, dying, and bereavement.
- Practical information for parents about how to talk to their children about death and issues related to grief.
- FAQ in the back of the book answered by professionals.
- Visually appealing, user friendly layout and design.
- Content supplied by individuals and organizations across the childhood bereavement field.
